SIGNIFICANT CASES

Butler v Attorney-General [2019] 2 Qd R 358 (led by Stephen Keim SC)

Description

The appellant is a prisoner detained indefinitely under the Criminal Law Amendment Act 1945 (Qld). He applied for unconditional release under s 18(5)(b) of the Act. The appeal concerned a question of whether the decision-maker, in determining that it was not expedient to release the appellant, actually considered the appropriate statutory test. The relevant statutory test being whether, upon the basis of the expert opinions that have been offered, was the decision-maker satisfied affirmatively that the appellant is presently incapable of properly controlling his sexual instincts. The appeal was allowed.

Owen-D'Arcy v Chief Executive, Queensland Corrective Services [2021] QSC 273

Description

Application by a prisoner for judicial review of 2 decisions by the respondent. The first decision concerned a decision to place the applicant on a consecutive maximum security order, taking the applicant's continuous detention in solitary confinement beyond 8 years. The second decision concerned the direction not to permit the applicant contact association with another prisoner. The applicant sought to review the decisions under the Judicial Review Act 1991 (Qld), as well as under the Human Rights Act 2019 (Qld). Both decisions were held to have been made unlawfully by the Court.
